Jordy Kudrna went elk hunting and, as you can see, it was successful. You can also see how successful the trip, provided by Sycamore Springs Ranch, was in bringing some smiles to this young man’s face. Jordy was 12 years old and attending school in Whitehall when he was diagnosed with Ewings Sarcoma, a very aggressive form of cancer, in July of last year. He’s had to undergo extensive chemotherapy treatments and stem cell harvests as he continues to fight his battle. Jordy met up with Brigid O’Donohue, founder of United Special Sportsmans Alliance, and Jordy went hunting. Jordy’s fight is far from over, but for a few days he was able to get away from all that his life has become and take an adventure he’ll never forget. You did good, Jordy! We’ll keep you posted on Jordy.
